

HUNDRED ARE DEAD

More Than Two Hundred Injured, Many Homes Wrecked.

CYCLONE WHICH VISITED TEXAS SUNDAY

Leaves Death and Destruction in Its Path—Million Dollar Damage—Details are Meagre.

Dallas, Texas, May 19.—A terrific cyclone swept through Texas last evening, the town of Goliad suffering severely. The latest report from Goliad today places the number of dead fully at 90, the injured at over 100. About 100 houses were destroyed. A strip about two blocks wide and a mile long was wiped out of the western part of the city. The work of devastation lasted less than five minutes about 5 o'clock last night.

The bodies of all the dead have been recovered and all of the wounded are being cared for, although there is urgent need of more physicians and nurses.

The storm swept over a large area of the southwestern Gulf coast. It wrought widespread damage. Wires are still down today and it is impossible to get all the news.

The storm came up suddenly from the southwest, after a hot and sunny day. In its course it struck the outskirts of San Antonio and damaged a number of buildings. Mexico, which also lay in the path of the wind, reports that several houses were blown down and a number of persons were injured.

The cyclone followed the general line of the Gulf Coast, and the towns lying within about 100 miles of salt water were the principal sufferers in the southern part of the state. Beeville reports much damage to property, but no fatalities. In the eastern part of the state heavy rains fell and the winds were high, but the storm was not cyclonic in character.

The territory immediately west of Austin felt the visitation severely. Walters Park, a hamlet 14 miles to the northeast of the capital, was badly damaged, three score or more business houses being blown down and many trees uprooted.

In Austin a number of houses were unroofed and the state institution for the blind was considerably damaged though none of the inmates were injured.

The damage at San Antonio is from $75,000 to $100,000, the velocity of the wind being 72 miles an hour. At Ft. Sam Houston government property was damaged to the extent of $20,000. The West End church there was destroyed and Hartwell's hotel was badly damaged. At least a million dollars' damage was done in San Antonio, Ft. Sam. Houston, Mexico and Beeville.

Dallas, Texas, May 19.—(Bulletin.)—Later news today from the cyclone at Goliad shows that the disaster was worse than earlier reports indicated. One hundred persons are dead in Goliad and vicinity and nearly 200 are injured, many of whom will die. The property losses over Texas are $1,000,000. More than 100 buildings were destroyed in Goliad and vicinity. Wires are still down and details are difficult to obtain.

AGAIN

MONT PEELE IS IN ACTIVE ERUPTION.

VIOLENT EXPLOSIONS HEARD AT FT. DE FRANCE.

DEATHS ON ST. VINCENT ISLAND.

President Announces that All Supplies Needed for the Present Are On Hand.

Paris, May 19.—A dispatch received today from Martinique says the wind has shifted and Pelee is now vomiting immense quantities of ashes on the southern part of the island. Violent explosions are heard. The ministry of colonies says the local administration is satisfied that sufficient supplies are arriving in Martinique in addition to what the Tago and Suchet brought to the island.

Washington, May 19.—The navy department today received the following dispatch from Captain McLean of the Cincinnati:

Ft. de France, May 19.—Water barge not needed. Ashes and volcanic dust falling thickly here. Now like thick fog. Decks covered.

Barbadoes, May 19.—There have been no fatalities.

GAS

EXPLODES IN MINE, KILLING 150 WORKMEN.

FRIGHTFUL DISASTER OCCURS IN TENNESSEE.

THE MINE IS NOW BURNING.

Only Three Bodies so Far Unidentified Have Been Recovered from the Wrecked Mine.

Nashville, Tenn., May 19.—A terrific gas explosion is reported to have occurred at 8:30 this morning at Fraterville and Thistle Coal Mines in the Coal Creek district.

Three hundred miners were at work in the mines and many are known to be lost. John Morgan was blown out of the mouth of the mine. The mines are now burning and smoke and flames are gushing from the entrances and the air shafts in the mountainsides.

This is the first disaster in either of the mines which were regarded as the safest in the district.

An official list of the Fraterville dead is given this afternoon at 150.

Only three bodies, so far unidentified, have been recovered.

ANOTHER EXLOSION.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 19.—About 11:30 o'clock this morning a large tank of gasoline at the Winniebagoe street plant of the United States glass company, exploded, wrecking the building. One unknown has been sent to the hospital, fatally hurt. Rumors of several deaths are not yet confirmed. Several people were burned and bruised.

DEATH

Of Christian Meier Occurred Monday Morning at 11 O'Clock—Funeral on Wednesday.

Christian F. A. Meier, aged 76, died at his home 125 Railroad street, at 11 o'clock Monday of a complication of diseases. He had been a resident of Newark for about 40 years during which time he had been employed as foreman at Forry's brick yard, but for the past six years he had done nothing on account of ill health.

He was a member of a Missouri regiment in the civil war and served throughout the struggle for the union. The deceased leaves a wife and two children, August Meier, and Mrs. Geo. Land, Jr., both of this city.

The funeral will take place from the late home, Wednesday at 2 o'clock. Rev. Schleiffer will conduct the services.

DEDICATION

OF NEW SIXTH STREET BAPTIST CHURCH SUNDAY.

A Large Contribution Received Towards Liquidating the Debt on New Church.

Sunday, May 18, was the date for the dedication of the Sixth street Primitive Baptist church, and the ceremonies attendant upon this function were highly interesting and well attended, the house being filled at all the services.

The dedicatory sermon was preached at 10:30 a. m., by Rev. H. A. Todd, editor of the "Gospel Light" of Craysville, Ill. A large contribution was received toward liquidating the debt of the church, and the membership kept at the altar while Rev. H. A. Todd offered the dedicatory prayer.

W. A. Shastine preached at 2:30, and Rev. H. A. Todd preached again at 7 o'clock.

The church with its pastor, Rev. W. H. Hickman, starts with every encouragement for success.

Elder Jno Pritchard of St. Louisville and Rev. W. A. Shastine of Thurston, assisted in the dedication ceremonies.

BUCKEYE LAKE—Buckeye Lake cars Sunday running for the first time regularly to the lake, carried fully 1,500 from Newark and points between this city and the Lake. The "opening" was a big success.

DEATH—Word has been received of the death of Dr. Hayes at Somerset Saturday night.

HIGHWATER.

P. H. Barker and Harvey Pierson spent Sunday in Alexandria. Miss Anna McFadden has returned after a short visit with friends in Granville.

Ray Kincaid and Harry Young passed through High Water Sunday on their way to the gas wells east of this place.

The schools of McKean township closed last Friday with a commencement at Fredonia M. E. church.

Rev. Jas. T. Lowe, wife and babe spent Friday and Saturday calling on friends in High Water.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Gosnell of Columbus are visiting their parents west of town.

There will be an ice cream social at High Water Union Chapel Saturday evening, May 24. Music furnished by Chatham band. Everybody invited.

MITCHELL

Is More Than Satisfied With the Situation—Hard and Soft Coal Miners to Meet Tuesday.

Hazleton, Pa., May 19.—President Mitchell of the mine workers today said that he was more than satisfied with the present strike situation. He thinks the miners will not need to appeal for financial aid. It is expected that the hard and soft coal men will meet Tuesday to decide about a general strike. The place of meeting is yet in doubt.

ESTRADA PALMA who will be inaugurated as president of the new Cuban republic Tuesday, May 20.

MISSIONARY

Rally at First Methodist Church Sunday—New Feature Added to the Work.

Sunday was the missionary rally at the First Methodist church. The interest and results exceeded those of any other missionary day in the history of the church. Last year the offerings were as large as the church ever gave, but yesterday's collections were more than double those of last year. The Sunday school offering was almost $90.00. Rev. J. O. Dunning did excellent service at all the services.

A new feature was added to the Sunday school work Sunday. A mixed adult Bible class was organized under the leadership of Dr. Wray Beattie, who for many years taught a class on the "Wannamaker plan" in the Metropolitan M. E. church in Washington City. This class will be a permanent feature of the Sunday school of the First church. Five new members were received into the church.

MR. EVERETT

Buys Thirty-One Acres of Land Lying Along the Creek Known as the Birkey Property.

George Wallace, as agent for the Boston Investment company of Lincoln, Neb., closed the sale today to Edward H. Everett, of thirty-one acres of land north of Indiana street, adjoining the creek. This property was owned by the late James F. Birkey 55 years ago.

CUBA

HOISTS HER OWN EMBLEM OF LIBERTY TUESDAY.

PRESIDENT PALMA TO HAVE A PLAIN INAUGURAL.

CUBA'S TROUBLES WITH SPAIN

Began With First Occupation of Island by Spanish Adventurers—Change of Flags at Noon.

Washington, May 19.—American soldiers will salute the American flag in Cuba for the last time tomorrow, and then they will salute the free Cuban Republic flag as it is hoisted to wave over a new republic.

General Tomas Estrada Palma will be inaugurated first president of the Cuban Republic, and the consummation of the bloody battles of a century will have been attained in assured freedom and independence.

General Palma, already called the "Grand Old Man" and the "Modern Lincoln" by his countrymen, is now in Havana, after a short journey through the island, during which he visited the scenes of many of his hardest struggles and severest suffering, when he fought for Cuban independence during the awful ten years of the '70's.

The inauguration ceremonies themselves will be simple and private, held in the palace at noon.

When Palma appears outside the palace the sworn executive of the republic, the American flag will be lowered and 600 American troops, dismounted, the last of the military occupants of the land, will salute it.

Amid the booming of artillery and the crash of Cuban bands in the plaza at the Morro Castle and on the Malecon, the Cuban flag will rise and the Americans will salute it.

Then General Wood and his staff and his troopers will be escorted by a great popular procession to the harbor, where they will immediately embark.

Just before leaving the United States, which has so long been his home, although his heart has been in Cuba, General Palma was asked of his plans and hopes for the islands.

"I would not be proper for me to speak in advance of my plan," he said, "but I can say that Cuba needs a policy turning her eyes to the future and making her forget the past. Let the crimes of other days be buried—swallowed up in the darkness which surrounds those years of conflict. Let us follow the example of Lincoln and Grant.

"Let us have peace, and in the brightness of tomorrow forget the night and errors of the past; let feuds and controversy cease, let us think of our children, of the prosperity that is to be theirs tomorrow, and all will be well.

"We want wise and honest government, and, above all, protection and justice for the people of Cuba; instead of strife let us have schools, commerce and industry—build up the country educate the people and develop the resources of our wonderful island republic.

"As I said the other night, my work shall from now on be the reconstruction of Cuba. Let us in this task of advancement and betterment of our beloved country use the high standard set by the United States. And we, too should demonstrate to this great nation that we are grateful and worthy of the generous assistance which it has advanced us. Let us work together, and the result must be a great and prosperous nation.

For eighteen years General Palma had been a school teacher and in his Central Valley Academy in Orange county, New York, thousands of young Cubans were educated. He is in his old age, genial and kindly, but he bears in his features still the marks of what he accomplished and suffered in the days of Cuba's worst struggle for liberty from 1868 to 1878.

When he was finally captured at the end of the struggle and sent a prisoner to Spain he remained always true to the cause. His mother had died of exposure after ten days' hiding in the forest without food, while the Spanish troops were in pursuit, his estates had been confiscated because he refused to swear allegiance to Spain. But, now his reward has come.

Cuba's troubles at the hands of Spain began with the first occupation of the island by Spanish adventurers. There were 500,000 confiding and peaceable natives. Slavery and cruelty wiped them off the land in fifty years. Again population increased and again persecution cut it down. Spain ravaged the island for taxes and refused it protection from pirates.

Toward the end of last century eleven months of British rule brought beginnings of prosperity, so that when Spanish exaction returned the planters and even the small holders of property, grew full of the spirit of revolution. Their sons they sent to the United States to learn of liberty. Spain saw the peril and crushed the budding spirit.

The wars of the century began, the bloody years being, 1823, 1826, 1828, 1830, 1848, 1850, 1851, 1855, 1868-1878, 1885 and finally 1895-1898. This last war alone cost Spain 150,000 men and over $100,000,000 in cash, and Cuba gave up 500,000 lives through starvation alone.

But now the island with its 46,000 square miles of land, its 2,200 miles of coast, 200 ports, 200 rivers, 17,000,000 acres of forests, and its fertile and productive plantations can start on a career of prosperity such as will surpass all that the slaughtered millions ever dreamed in their century of struggle.

PRESIDENT

WILL SPEAK AT PITTSBURG ON JULY FOURTH.

Now the Smoky City is Going to Prepare for the Biggest Kind of a Celebration.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 19.—President Roosevelt is to deliver the Fourth of July address at Pittsburg this year.

The committee of invitation visited him at Washington on Saturday and urged the President to comply with its request to deliver the address on July 4, stating that the occasion is to be one of the great events in Pittsburg's history.

Mr. Roosevelt said in reply: "Gentlemen, I am going to accept your invitation, and I do so with great pleasure.

"I am delighted that this opportunity has been given me to visit that great manufacturing center and to meet its really great people.

"I do not know that I can say any more than to assure you of the pleasant anticipations I already have of the visit that is before me."

When it was learned that President Roosevelt had definitely accepted the invitation of the city of Pittsburg to witness a real, old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration, in the open, with Declaration of Independence reading, patriotic addresses, daylight and night fireworks, balloon ascensions, flying airships and all the other modern trimmings, there was general satisfaction and predictions of an unprecedented attendance and unequalled enthusiasm were heard on every hand.

IRA KEARNS DEAD.

Pittsburg, May 19.—Ira B. Kearns of Frazeyburg, O., died at the Mercy street hospital Saturday night, making the Frazeyburg death list now 22. The mother and sister of Mr. Kearns were present at the death. The remains have been taken to Frazeyburg for burial.

J. A. Atterbury was killed in a ferry boat collision in New York today. A heavy fog covered the water.

A FALL.—Ernest Garrison, the fifteen year old son of Mr. Garrison, of the Everett glass works, fell from a tree on the banks of the North Fork Monday and was badly injured.

TRUANCY—Amos Brown, arrested for truancy, was brought before Judge Taylor and sentenced to the Boys' Industrial School, but the sentence was suspended, pending good behavior.

HEAT

TO VANISH BEFORE THIS NEW INVENTION.

ROOMS KEPT CHEAPLY AT 72 IN HOTTEST WEATHER.

THE SUMMER EVIL TO DISAPPEAR

Prof. Moore, Chief of the Weather Bureau, Makes Application for a Patent on Novel Invention.

Washington, May 19.—The possibility of keeping living rooms at a temperature of 70 to 72 degrees in the hottest weather, which means practically an end to summer heat suffering, is held out by Professor Willis L. Moore, the chief of the weather Bureau, who has just made application for a patent on what he calls a gravity air-cooling, dry and purifying machine. The new apparatus is the result of several years of study and experiment. Professor Moore believes the invention to be of immense scientific and practical value. The cost of the machine will be so small that it will be within the reach of nearly all, so that the horrors of sweltering in stuffy rooms of the city during the midsummer promises to be materially lessened. Professor Moore says:

"I believe that my machine solves the problem of a cheap, harmless and automatically working apparatus for cooling rooms. It is so simple that anyone can manipulate it; it can be removed from room to room; it is absolutely safe, and above all can be constructed so cheaply that it will be within the means of practically everyone to obtain.

"It is specially adapted for use in cooling dwelling houses, hospitals and any place of habitation. I am thoroughly satisfied that it will not be five years before this machine or one of a similar type will be in practically every place of amusement, in every hotel and hospital, in ever house that will then have what is called modern improvements. It will be a great boon in sleeping apartments during the hot nights of summer. The device is such that it can be automatically regulated, and there will be no trouble in keeping a room at a temperature of between 70 and 72, no matter how hot it may be under normal conditions.

"A room can be maintained at a temperature of 72 in the hottest weather and with humidity at the highest point. Chemicals are used in combination with pipes that bring in air from the outside. I have worked on this scheme for the last three years, and have examined over 300 patents relating to the subject of machines for cooling rooms. None of those for which patents have been taken out have ever been introduced into general use, except for refrigerating plants, which require expensive machinery to work."

On top of one of the buildings of the weather bureau Professor Moore has built a "cool house" in which he expects to attend to his office work during the heated period. The temperature of this house will be anywhere from 20 to 30 degrees lower than on the outside. The scheme is based on a system of evaporation. Professor Moore says that the apparatus will be especially adapted for the great arid and subarid regions of the West where there is great humidity in the air and wonderful efficiency in evaporation.

Both Recovering.

At 2:30 this afternoon reports from the bedridden of Chief J. O. Bausch, and Driver Orville Priest the men injured in Sunday morning's accident, are to the effect that both patients are resting very well and barring any untoward circumstances, will both recover.

Dr. Hornby said that Priest's injuries are serious but he hopes he will recover without serious consequences.

Dr. Legge said that Chief Bausch should get along now to complete and rapid recovery.

NO LENIENCY.

"No leniency will be shown these people as in 1900," is the declaration of a coal trust official, referring to the striking miners.

There you have it. There is no presidential election this autumn.

If all signs are not at fault we shall shortly hear the familiar demand for troops. The Gobins and Martins will be full of business one more. So will the coroner.

No leniency, indeed, will be shown. The coal trust means to take revenge for its enforced moderation of two years ago. Mr. Hanna is too busy to interfere.

NO "EMBASSY" AT HAVANA.

While there will be a considerable representation of the United States at the inauguration of President Palma of Cuba Tuesday, it is noteworthy that no "special ambassador" from Mr. Roosevelt will be there on that interesting occasion.

Is this due to oversight merely, or is it because the function affords no opportunity for American social leaders to appear in court dress and touch elbows with royalty and aristocracy?

Mr. Roosevelt and the American people would appear to much better advantage with a special embassy at Havana than they can hope to do at Madrid or London.

Sucking Poisonous Wounds.

Among all people the sucking of the wound has ever been considered the most effective remedy of immediate application for snake bites. In Africa a cupping instrument is employed in emergencies of the kind to draw out the poisoned blood. The ancient followed the same methods, and when Cato made his famous expedition through the serpent infested African deserts he employed many savage snake charmers, called psylli, to follow the army. They performed many mysterious rites over men who were bitten, but the efficacy of their treatment appears to have consisted in sucking the wounds.

Electric Centipedes.

Least attractive among the insects which give light are the so called "electric centipedes," black crawlers with many legs which have been likened to serpents' skeletons in miniature. They move in a snakelike fashion, forward or backward, leaving behind them a bright track of phosphoric light. However, they are most accustomed to appear in the daytime, when the illumination they afford is not visible.—London Times.

THE ANNUAL MAY MEETING

Of the Licking Democracy to be Held
May 24, 1902.

THE CALL.

At the meeting of the several committees of the Democracy of Licking county, held in Newark on Saturday, May 10, 1902, it was decided that the annual Democratic convention should be called to meet in the Court Room of the Court House, this city, on Saturday, May 24, 1902, and shall be called to order at 10 o'clock a. m., by the chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, who shall be recognized temporary chairman of said convention until the committee on permanent organization shall have reported.

It shall be the business of the temporary chairman of said convention to announce a committee on permanent organization, consisting of one member from each ward in the city of Newark, and each township and precinct in the county, said committee to be selected by the Democratic voters present from each ward and township, each acting separately.

In like manner committees consisting of one member from each township, ward and precinct shall be chosen as follows:

Committee on time and mode of making nominations.

Committee to select and report delegates to the State Convention.

Supervisors of Primary Elections.

The committee on permanent organization shall at once proceed to elect and report to the convention, a President, two Vice-Presidents and two Secretaries of said convention.

The other committees as above named shall meet at once to perform their duties and make their respective reports to the convention.

In voting on the reports of the committees on all questions, resolutions, or any other business before the meeting, the secretary shall call the roll of the townships and wards and each township and ward shall be entitled to one vote for every 25 votes cast for Hon. James Kilbourne, for Governor at the November election, 1901, and one for every fraction of 13 votes.

Democrats present from each township shall constitute the delegation from such ward and township, and the votes shall be cast as they direct by one of their members chosen by themselves.

The vote to which each township and ward is entitled is as follows:

WHEN AMY RAN AWAY

When Amy was a little girl, ever so much smaller than she is now, she had the very bad habit of running away from home.

Of course this put mamma to a great deal of worry and trouble. As soon as she missed the child she would fly from room to room, out to the stable and up and down the street, calling loudly, "Amy, Amy, Amy Brooks!"

Then Bobby Shafto, the parrot, all green and gold and red and blue, rocking on his perch in the nursery corner, would take up the call "Amy, Amy, Amy Brooks!"—till between Bobby's chatter and her own distress mamma was almost distracted.

But when Amy was at last found mamma would lead her quietly to the nursery, away from the beautiful grass and birds and sunshine, take off her pretty clothes, wash the soiled hands and face, put on the white ruffled nightgown and lay her in the little bed. She never scolded Amy, not a word, but just left her alone to think over her naughtiness all by herself.

But Bobby Shafto didn't approve of these mild measures. He thought Amy needed a good hard scolding, so he made up his mind to give it to her.

"Amy, Amy, Amy Brooks!" he would cry. He peered all about the room, making believe he didn't see the girl in the crib.

Suddenly he would fix his eyes upon her and scream out loud and shrill: "Oh, here she is! Here she is!" After that he would stand solemnly blinking at her till Amy grew very tired of his big bright eyes.

Then all at once he would burst into the very worst scolding he knew anything about, speaking every word with a slow, distinct jerk.

"Do—you—see—this—why? Now—will—you—be—a—good—boy?" he said.

Whether it was due to Bobby Shafto's scolding I cannot say, but pretty soon Amy would begin to be a little bit sorry, and then she would grow a little more sorry and then more sorry still, till at last she would sit up in bed and call mamma in a very choked voice.

How glad mamma always was to go to her little girl, cuddle her close and listen to the whispered words:

"I'm sorry, mamma, and I won't run away again, never, never."

At last she grew old and wise enough to keep the promise, and Bobby Shafto forgot his little speech, because he had no more reason for scolding Amy.

And Papa Brooks woke up to the fact that Amy had grown to be not only a big but a very good girl, and then he bought her a bicycle.

It did not take the active child long to learn to ride it. Soon she was flying over the smooth roads as lightly as a bird skims through the air.

And then—and then all at once Amy ran away with her wheel, or perhaps it would be better to say that the wheel ran away with Amy. Down Walnut hill it took her, faster and faster, till where the road turns at the bottom of the hill over went she and the wheel together, striking on the sharp stones.

By the greatest good chance papa was passing with a pony cart. He picked her up in his strong arms, carried her home, laid her on the nursery bed and sent for Dr. Roberts.

The good doctor examined her very gently and found that two bones in her leg were broken just above the ankle.

Amy was a very brave child, but she had to cry and cry hard while he set the broken bones back into place and adjusted the awkward splint.

No one thought of Bobby Shafto, green and gold and red and blue, sitting on his perch in the corner, watching them with eyes so curious he almost stared them out of his head. He was quiet because he was so busy thinking.

"What does all this mean?" said Bobby Shafto to himself. "Here's Amy crying with might and main. Here's Amy undressed and put to bed in the middle of the day. What does it all mean? Ha, ha! I know! Bobby Shafto knows! They can't fool Bobby Shafto! Amy's been running away again! That's what's the matter! Amy's been running away again! Ha, ha, ha!"

Then he ruffled up his feathers and went on thinking. And, oh, how angry he grew!

"And here's Mamma Brooks kissing and petting the bad, bad child instead of giving her the scolding she deserves."

All this thought Bobby Shafto till he couldn't stand it one minute longer. He gave two or three shrill cries to attract attention, and then, loud and clear, began the old scolding:

"Amy, Amy, Amy Brooks! Oh, here you are! Do—you—see—this—why? Now—will—you—be—a—good—boy?"

Amy stopped crying and began to laugh.

"Oh, papa, Bobby Shafto thinks I've been running away!" she said.

"Well, haven't you?" answered papa, laughing too.

And then they all laughed together, Amy and papa and doctor and mamma.

And with that the bones began to mend, and they mended and mended, till at last they were as good as new.

Keeps His Promises.

A quaint story is told of little Prince Eddie of Wales. A lady who was sitting in the room with him referred to him as "a very promising boy." Prince Eddie, who did not understand the expression and what it meant, looked up from his play and exclaimed, "But I never make a promise unless I am sure I can keep it—indeed I never do!"

BOWSER AFTER ROOTS

FINDS HE NEEDS OLD FASHIONED SPRING BEER FOR HIS SYSTEM.

He Goes Out to Do Some Digging and Battles With a Farmer—Latter Is Convinced That the Searcher's Actions Are Suspicious.

(Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.)

It was a morning of glad sunshine and soft skies and singing birds, but Mr. Bowser got up feeling lousy. At breakfast he had little appetite, and he dragged his legs as he went up stairs, and Mrs. Bowser dually said:

"I think you ought to let up on smoking for a week or so and get the nicotine out of your system."

"What has smoking to do with it?" he at once demanded.

"I think you smoke too much. It may be, however, that you have grown too fat again."

"Too fat again! When was I ever too fat before? There isn't an ounce of extra fat on me, and you know it. You seem to want to pick a fuss this morning."

"I don't wish that, of course, but if I were you I'd get a tonic or something. I'm quite sure your blood is out of order."

Mr. Bowser looked at his tongue in the glass over the mantel, dalled with a purple on his chin and finally turned and observed:

"What's the matter with me is that spring is here, and I need an old-fashioned tonic made of roots. It's worth forty times anything a doctor can prescribe. I used to always dig the roots for mother when I was a boy. She made a sort of beer of it, and it was the greatest thing for the blood you ever saw."

"Well, you might engage a farmer to dig you some roots," suggested Mrs. Bowser, though feeling certain in advance of his answer.

"I think I see myself! I don't care to die of poison just yet. What I propose to do is to take the day off and go out after my own roots. I want dandelion, sarsaparilla, sassafras, sweet siccly, spicelush and several other kinds, and the walk will also do me good. I can show the cook how to make a keg of beer, and it'll be the thing for both of us."

"Very well, but of course you'll be careful. It is many years since you were a boy."

"Yes, a thousand or more," he sarcastically replied after a glare at her. "If you didn't take advantage of every possible occasion to call me a relic of the Mayflower, you wouldn't be happy. However, if I don't happen to know sarsaparilla from thistle I'll take the consequences."

Mrs. Bowser had nothing farther to say, while the cat sat up with a solemn look on her face, and Mr. Bowser donned an old suit of clothes and got a basket and a spade and started out on his trip.

He looked quite happy as he fairly got started, and he paid no attention to the two or three wicked boys who yelled after him and wanted to know if he was going out to dig for woodchucks.

A yellow car was soon speeding him countryward, and his lousy feeling was quickly replaced by a plucky one. He enjoyed every moment of the run to the terminus, and he would have gone on looking for bluebirds if the conductor hadn't poked his nose in. He was a man working for $1.68 a day and consequently had no sentiment about him.

"You don't expect to find clams out this way, do you?" he asked as Mr. Bowser got off the car.

"Who said I did?" was the reply.

"Nobody. I only judged so from your look. You'll be disappointed, old man. Used to be millions of 'em roosting in the trees, but an epidemic of whooping cough came along and choked 'em to death. You might run test and had less wind. It was an even thing for five minutes, and then Mr. Bowser got up and climbed the fence and started for home, leaving spade and basket and the farmer behind. He had been rolled in the soft mud, and he had been rolled in the ponds of water, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon a dilapidated, dejected something appeared in the front hall of the Bowser mansion without having rung the bell.

Mrs. Bowser looked at it, and the cat looked at it, and while they were still peering and wondering it suddenly uttered these words:

"Woman, your murderous plot has been laid bare in all its wickedness, and you and I will have a settlement this evening!"

Then it dragged itself up stairs, and the cat winked at Mrs. Bowser and Mrs. Bowser smiled in return.

Unsuspecting Victim.

The Mosquito—After you, my dear Alphonse.—New York Journal.

Mr. Bowser was hopping mad in a minute, and he put down basket and spade with the idea of punching the man's head. Then he suddenly realized that it was all Mrs. Bowser's fault and that he'd make her pay for it when he got home, and he picked up his utensils and journeyed on. Spring was certainly at hand. He saw robins flitting, and he found mudholes twenty feet across. He saw lambs frisking and fell off a fence and split his coat up the back. The buds were bursting into blossom and the meadows taking on a vivid green, but these things were somewhat offset by an old one horned cow running him along the highway for a quarter of a mile and splashing him with mud from head to heel. It was only after an hour's walk that Mr. Bowser gained the primeval forest. It was primeval because there was as much as three acres of it, and the acres were under mortgage altogether and under water to a large extent. However, it was in the primeval forest that he used to dig roots when he was a bounding boy, and he looked around him with expectancy. The mud dried on his eyebrows and the water squashed out of his shoes as he searched around, but he didn't permit those trifling incidents to interrupt the harmony of the occasion. It was only when he paused before a milkweed plant that was getting ready for a spring boom that he began to doubt his knowledge of rootology. He was digging it up to see whether it was sarsaparilla or sweet flag when the old farmer who owned the primeval, subject to mortgage, came that way looking for a stray hog.

"What ye lookin' for?" he queried, with suspicion in his tones.

"Roots," brusquely replied Mr. Bowser—"roots to make a spring beer for the blood."

"And do ye want milkweed and skunk's cabbage to make yer tonic? Them's the only kind as grows around here. Who be ye anyhow?"

"My name is Bowser."

"I never heard of it before, but I don't like the sound of it. Sounds like the name of a man who'd steal hogs. I'd be much obliged to ye if ye'd root yerself out of this."

"I want to find some spring roots," protested Mr. Bowser as he choked his anger back; "sarsaparilla, spicelush, sassafras and so forth. You must have heard of root beer. Our mothers used to make it for the blood, you know."

"Yes, I may hev," replied the farmer, "but I've also heard of hog thieves. I've missed a spotted hog, and if ye've stole him I'll feller ye to state prison."

"Say, you old puddling head, do you mean to insult me?" shouted the root seeker as he boiled over at last.

"Git outter my woods or it'll be the wuss for ye!"

"I won't do it!"

"Then I'll make ye!"

There was a mortal combat. The farmer was the oldest and had a bow to his back, but Mr. Bowser was the fatter and had less wind. It was an even thing for five minutes, and then Mr. Bowser got up and climbed the fence and started for home, leaving spade and basket and the farmer behind. He had been rolled in the soft mud, and he had been rolled in the ponds of water, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon a dilapidated, dejected something appeared in the front hall of the Bowser mansion without having rung the bell.

Every Scrap With a Printed Character Upon It Is Sacred.

You will never find upon the street or in the rubbish heap a scrap of paper with Chinese characters written or printed upon it. An intelligent Chinaman, questioned as to the reason, explained the matter in this way:

"Meticulous man never tears up and throws in street his Bible or hymnbook. Chinese living at same to Chinaman as Meticulous man's Bible."

Then he still further elucidated the mystery by leading the way to the cellar of a Race street house, in which, piled up before a gigantic furnace, were bundles of paper and sacks of letters and newspapers printed in Chinese hieroglyphics.

Interpreted into plain English the old Chinaman's story was that the orientals regarded the written characters as so sacred that this furnace was especially set apart, after being blessed by the priests, for the incineration of all Chinese letters and documents.

So sacred indeed was the Chinese writing regarded by the orientals that the most compromising letters of the highbinders and the private correspondence of families were left with confidence in the care of the furnace attendant, it being perfectly well known that he would not risk his immortal soul by committing the deadly sin of prying into correspondence committed to his care to be given to the flames.

Nor does the oriental regard the Chinese writing as safe from the hands of the infidel even when every scrap of it has been reduced to ashes. After the paper has been burned the ashes are carefully collected, and when enough has accumulated to make a load they are shipped on board a boat belonging to the Chinese Merchants' company, by which society all such matters are managed, and taken to sea, where they are scattered over the surface of the ocean.

To the Chinaman it is horrifying to see the white man's newspapers used for wrapping purposes, his letters scattered around the streets to be walked on and his old books flung around when read as though of no more sacredness than old boots. A letter, an envelope, the printed slips extolling the virtues of preserved ginger or the characters that advertise a laundry for sale become, after their usefulness has passed, as sacred as the gilded ornaments that add to the glory of the joss.

One man is employed in Chinatown to collect the waste paper. He calls at the stores and the rooms and gathers it up with the utmost care, trying it in sacks so that not a shred shall escape. With his sacred burden he goes to the furnace room and hands the sacks to the important personage in charge there, who stows it away ready for the next burning day. Twice a week the furnace is lighted and the sacks of paper solemnly committed to the flames, with many incantations.—Philadelphia Record.

A LITTLE GIRL'S TEAM OF GREYHOUNDS

Orpha Kurtz, the eleven-year-old daughter of Jacob Kurtz, who lives at York, Pa., is the proud owner of a novel team. Deuce and Dawn are fleet footed greyhounds that were broken to harness three years ago. They pace or trot at the will of the little driver, convey her to and from school and take her on shopping tours.

A ROUGH DIAMOND.

The Big Hearted Little Blacksmith Who Did the Job for Jimmy.

A New York merchant called to a little blacksmith to give him a shine. The little fellow came rather slowly for one of his guild and planted his box down under the merchant's foot. Before he could get his brushes out another large boy ran up and, calmly pushing the little one aside, said:

"Here, you go sit down, Jimmy."

The merchant at once became indignant at what he took to be a piece of outrageous bullying and sharply told the newcomer to clear out.

"Oh, dat's all right, boss," was the reply. "I'm only going to do it for him. You see, he's been sick in the hospital for more than a month and can't do much work yet, so us boys all turn in and give him a lift when we can."

"Is that so, Jimmy?" asked the merchant, turning to the smaller boy.

"Yes, sir," wearily answered the boy, and as he looked up the pallid, pinched face could be discerned even through the grime that covered it. "He'll do it for me if you'll let him."

"Certainly. Go ahead." And as the blacksmith plied the brush the merchant plied him with questions. "You say that all the boys help him in this way?"

"Yes, sir. When they ain't got no job themselves and Jimmy gets one they turn in and helps him."

"What percentage do you charge him on each job?"

"He?" queried the boy. "Don't know what you mean."

"I mean what part of the money do you give Jimmy, and how much do you keep?"

"Bet your life I don't keep none! I ain't such a sneak!"

"You give it all to him?"

"Yes, I do. All the boys give up what they get on his job. I'd like to catch any feller sneaking it on a sick boy!"

The shine being completed, the merchant handed the urchin a quarter, saying:

"I guess you're a pretty good fellow, so you keep a dime, and give the rest to Jimmy."

"Can't do it, sir. It's his customer. Here you be, Jim."

He threw him the coin and was off like a shot after a customer for himself—a veritable rough diamond. There are many such lads, with warm and generous hearts under their ragged coats.—Presbyterian.

A Novel Game.

Here's a game that is enjoyed by every one who plays it. Make two cornucopias of fairly stiff paper, leaving the small ends large enough to pass pieces of twine through. Take two pieces of string and slip each piece through one cornucopia, stretching them two feet apart as tight as you can across the room, fastening the ends to either wall.

The strings should be high enough from the ground to enable you to blow into the cornucopia. The object of the game is for two people to stand at the end of the strings and blow into the large openings of the cornucopias and see which can get one across the room first.

It takes a person with a good pair of lungs to send one the length of the string in one blow.

Too Sleepy to Love.

Marion's big brother was going to get home early that morning from a long absence, and all the family got up to welcome him. Marion was waked up two hours before the usual time and was very sleepy even after her bath and breakfast. When her brother came, she did her best, but could not conceal the yawns.

"Why, Marion," said her mother, "you are only half awake!"

"I know it," she answered. "If I had been whole awake, I wouldn't have got up."

"Then you don't love me," her brother said.

"Yes I do," she retorted, "but I can love you better when I'm not sleepy."

How Could He Forget?

The little girl ran flying down the front steps and called out with an agonizing cry:

"Papa! Papa!"

Papa had started down town. He stopped and waited.

"What is it, Bessie?"

"I want to kiss you goodby."

"Well, dear, why don't you kiss me?"

"I will," said the little girl, with trembling lip and quivering chin, "as soon as I can make the pucker!"—Exchange.

OLD AGE AND SPRING

PAINE'S Celery Compound

Invigorates and Strengthens Those Advanced in Years.

If You Feel Old, the Great Medicine Will Give You the Vigor and Health of Youth.

Everyone in springtime should give attention to the purifying of the blood, the bracing of the nerves, and the regulating of the digestive apparatus.

This is the special time when old people need a tonic and strength giving—something that will restore them to that condition of health that conduces to make old age happy, cheerful, and bright.

Old people should carry home with them today—not by-and-by—a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. It will certainly banish the rheumatism and neuralgia that help to make life a misery; it will drive out of the system all impurities and make the life stream flow fresh and pure; it will banish weakness and all languid feelings, and impart the vigor and activity that mark youthfulness. It is the only medicine that will fully meet the needs and expectations of all in declining years.

Mrs. Mary E. Burgess, an estimable and highly respected resident of Clements, Cal., finds Paine's Celery Compound her stay and helper in advancing years; she writes as follows:—

"I am 72 years old, and in the past have not been well; I had spells of weakness and headache. A friend of mine told me to try Paine's Celery Compound; I got a bottle and it helped me very much. It gave me a good appetite and made me strong and happy. I think there is nothing like it. My husband has taken it, and it strengthened him. Now when we do not feel well we get a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and it saves us doctors' bills."

Tribute To Mrs. Grace Fleck.

The ladies of the Board of Managers of the Hospital desire to express their profound sorrow at the sudden removal of an honored member of the Board, Mrs. Grace Fleck.

They extend their sympathy to the family in this hour of their sore affliction, commending them for comfort to the God in whom she reposed her trust and confidence.

They also bear testimony to her intense zeal and hearty support of the interests of the Hospital from the beginning of the work to the day of her death.

They will deeply feel the loss of the companionship and counsel of her, who has wrought so nobly in life and has now passed on to her reward.

HOW TO EMPLOY INDIANS.

Novel Suggestion Made by Ella H. Cooper.

The problem of finding occupations for our American Indians that would be at once congenial and lucrative has never been successfully solved, says Ella H. Cooper in "How to Educate the Indians" in Guntout's Magazine for May. They have been placed at tasks for which they have no natural aptitude and forced into competition with the skilled labor of alien races, while the arts in which they excelled were neglected. In basketry, the most ancient of arts, their work cannot be surpassed, yet we are told that it is fast taking its place among the lost and forgotten handicrafts. Had this industry been favored by protective legislation it would have furnished remunerative employment for the Indian men and women when not otherwise occupied. A tariff that would have checked the influx of Japanese work competing in the same line would have reserved this home market for our own aborigines.

The sweet grasses, the quills and feathers, the birch bark and beads, all the materials which the Indian has appropriated and used with peculiar and fascinating effect, should be left in his skillful hands, and encouragement and guidance in the marketing of his wares should not be lacking. The hands that weave the baskets can braid hats as well. The sweet grasses that blend in the dainty fan would be no less effective in rustic outing hats. Road porcupines could be strung by Indians as well as by Asiatics, and our homes could be beautified by the labors and genius of those we have supplanted in this land.

AS TOLD IN WASHINGTON

[Special Correspondence.]

Washington, May 19.—There is employed on the White House grounds an ancient gardener who believes in attending to his own business and not bothering about the affairs of the nation or any other irrelevant matters. There may be changes in the executive office and in the cabinet, but they do not interest him. He goes on with his digging and pruning just the same.

The other day the old man was at work among the roses in the south

"GUESS I KNOW MY OWN BUSINESS," grounds of the mansion, when he was approached by a somewhat brisk and sprightly individual wearing eyeglasses, who challenged his judgment in the matter of pruning rosebushes.

"My good fellow," said the intruder, "don't you know you are cutting off too much of that rose? Running roses should never be trimmed so much as the other kind."

The professor of the shears regarded the interloper scornfully.

"Young man," he said, with austerity, "I don't know where you got your learning, but I guess I know my own business a good deal better than you do, and I know how to mind it better."

The intruder turned away, with a chuckle. He happened to be President Roosevelt.

In the springtime, when the young man's fancy is supposed to lightly turn in a certain direction, the thoughts of some congressmen seem to be especially directed toward fancy waistcoats and other articles of attractive vesture.

The other day there passed through one of the capitol corridors together Representative Shattuck of Ohio, Senator McComas of Maryland and Senator Harris of Kansas. In the matter of waistcoats Solomon in all his glory was not to be compared with this trio. Shattuck wore a red vest, McComas a white one, and Harris' form was encircled with a vest of blue. The three statesmen looked like a section of the American flag.

Senator Harris' vest is a work of art. It is light azure in color and as dainty as a bed of heliotrope. Major Shattuck unquestionably possesses the largest and showiest collection of vests of any man in congress since the retirement of Senator Wolcott, whose waistcoats, many in number, were marvels of gorgeousness. The major is, however, a close second to the former Colorado senator. His favorite color is red, though in the course of a week or ten days he will display about all the colors of the rainbow. The other day he wore a white linen vest with what he termed "a watered appearance in parenthesis." He proudly exhibited it to his colleagues and announced that he was wearing it because he intended making a speech on industrial conditions during the day.

"You'd better take it off," warned Representative Littauer of New York. "Somebody will make a point of order against that vest as not being germane."

That the colored vest habit has a strong hold on congress is evinced in the fact that even the staid and dignified Senator Allison wears a yellow waistcoat.

But not alone in waistcoats does the forgers springtime assert itself in the sartorial adornments of statesmen. A few days ago Champ Clark almost took the breath away from his colleagues in the house by sauntering into the chamber arrayed in a dove colored frock suit exactly like those worn by the male portion of the sextet in "Florodora."

"Tell me, pretty maiden," hummed

Representative Wadsworth of New York, "are there more at home like you?"

It is said that Representative O. H. P. Belmont of New York will as soon as the atmospheric conditions are just right appear in a costume that will startle Washington. Some of his close friends have seen it, but he has not yet deigned to spring it on the waiting world. It consists of an immaculate white flannel suit, with a gorgeous flowing necktie and a Panama hat, the shape of the latter being something about midway between the sombrero and the fedora. It is intimated that it will be the coolest and most airy outfit that ever came down Pennsylvania avenue and that the temperature of the capital will drop at least 20 degrees upon its first appearance.

Chairman Proctor of the civil service commission is from Kentucky, and Commissioner Foulke is from Indiana. They are excellent friends, but take great delight in "rigging" each other about the wickedness of the two states. Mr. Foster insisting that Indiana is beyond redemption, while Mr. Foulke asserts that Kentucky is unspeakable. In a tilt the other day the Kentucky man rather got the better of his Indiana colleague.

"I was on a railroad train once," said Chairman Proctor to Commissioner Foulke, "and two men got on. One was from Kentucky and one from Indiana. The Indiana man sat down in the same seat with the Kentucky man. Hoping to start a conversation, the Indiana man said to the Kentucky man, 'I guess you are from Indiana, ain't you?'"

"Not by a darn sight," answered the Kentuckian. "I'm sick today, and that's the reason I look so."

Senator Platt of Connecticut and Senator Teller of Colorado were in the lobby discussing the opening of certain Indian lands to settlement, concerning the value of which they radically disagreed.

"Did you ever see these lands which the government proposes to buy?" asked Senator Teller.

"No," said Senator Platt.

"Have you ever been west?" persisted Senator Teller.

Mr. Platt's answer was not very positive. He had been west, he said—"that is," he added, "part of the way west."

"You remind me," said Teller, "of the woman who lived in Portland, Me. Some one asked her if she had ever traveled west. 'Oh, yes,' she promptly answered; 'I have been to Boston.'"

Like many another member of congress, Speaker Henderson enjoys seeing a game of ball and is sometimes among the spectators in the grand stand on the Washington field. While witnessing a game the other day he observed that the umpire made a decision upon a close point in the play which caused much dissatisfaction. To the objectors the umpire shouted as one having authority, "Play ball!" and the game went on. Recalling a certain incident which lately occurred in the house over which he presides, Speaker Henderson facetiously remarked to a companion:

"Well, I suppose if Cushman was here he would object to the umpire running this game."

Later, in the presence of a party of his colleagues in the cloakroom of the house, the congressman from the Pacific slope was told of the speaker's remark at the ball game.

"Oh, I remember once," observed Cushman nonchalantly as he blew out a wreath of cigar smoke, "seeing a baseball umpire mobbed. He thought he was running the game, but before it was ended he found that instead of running the game he was running the game."

"Well, I suppose if Cushman was here he would object to the umpire running this game."

Later, in the presence of a party of his colleagues in the cloakroom of the house, the congressman from the Pacific slope was told of the speaker's remark at the ball game.

"Oh, I remember once," observed Cushman nonchalantly as he blew out a wreath of cigar smoke, "seeing a baseball umpire mobbed. He thought he was running the game, but before it was ended he found that instead of running the game he was running the game."

Mr. Cushman arose and left the cloakroom without elaborating on the moral of his comparison between the speaker of the house and the baseball umpire. SAMUEL HUBBARD.

STICK TO ONE THING.

A Man Who Wishes He Had Lived Up To That Rule.

"The only way for a man on a salary to make a success of life financially and otherwise is to stick to one thing," said a government employee to a reporter. "Twenty years ago I had plenty of energy, a little money and a huge stock of ideas. I determined to become a power in the money market and as a starter dabbed for six months or more in stocks. That experience cost me $4,000. I soon became convinced that I was cut out for a digger and straight way invested $2,000 in a pharmacy. Cut rates were unknown in those days and in a short time I was doing well, but one day I read of a prominent lawyer receiving $25,000 as a fee for some case, and instantly I became imbued with the idea that I would make a great lawyer. I neglected my drug business to such an extent that in two years I was $300 to the bad. In the meantime I read law diligently. After a time I graduated as a full fledged disciple of Blackstone and hung out my shingle. Business not coming my way as fast as I thought it should, I opened a small hotel; result, $1,500 in the hole. "Then I tried my hand at real estate, my legal training helping me greatly, but the same old story will have to be recorded here—failure. By this time my money was nearly all gone. What to do next was the all absorbing question. One day a friend convinced me that big money could be made out of chickens. I invested every cent I had left, $1,200, in hens. At the end of six months I sold out my henery for $300. Then I got a government job, and here I've been ever since. Shortly after my arrival in this town I purchased a little land in the northwest section. That investment has yielded me a very handsome return, and I am now thoroughly satisfied that the only thing for a man on a salary to do is to either put a little each month in some good savings bank or invest his surplus in land or bricks and mortar. Remember one thing—this is an age of specialists. Stick to one thing, make a success of it, and maybe one of these days some big company will offer you a princely salary for your knowledge. A rolling stone gathers no moss or money."—Washington Star.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

The average life of raspberry plantations is about six years.

With grapes the rule should be to dig deep and plant shallow.

For rooting the best cutting of a plant is a shoot of new growth just before it grows woody or at all fibrous.

Trees about the house make it more attractive and homelike, besides shielding it from the cold winds of winter and the hot suns of summer.

Cut the young trees back when placing them in the ground and also trim off some of the roots, especially those that are bruised or broken in any way.

Fruit trees cannot thrive on all kinds of exhausted soil. The trees will make a growth of leaves and wood on poor land, but they require mineral manure to perfect the fruit.

In most cases when planting shade trees the hardness of the trees should be given preference over rapid growth. It is of no advantage to secure a shade tree early only to have it die when most useful.

How He Proposed.

He wished to propose to the girl of his choice, but he was nervous. First he thought of the old romantic style: "By my halidom, fair one, I would fain take thee for my bride. Say thou wilt be mine, and ere the sun glides the turrets of yonder castle the friar shall unite us in holy bonds."

In the face of the prevalent rage for dramas of the olden style, this form seemed satisfactory. Being an eminent modern young man, however, he thought again and determined to test the theatrical mode.

But just at that moment the fair Mary tripped into the room, and he blurted out:

"Er—Mary—er—will you—er—well—But Mary was far from being contrary. "Oh, that's all right, George," said she, "I know what you mean. Why, of course, I will. Papa will be delighted."—New York Herald.

LADDER TRUCK WRECKED

And Three of Newark's Firemen Injured; While Responding to Alarm Before Daylight Sunday Morning—How Accident Occurred—Chief Bausch Recovering.

A serious accident happened about 2:20 o'clock Sunday morning at the West Main street bridge over Raceoon creek, and as a result three men were badly hurt, two seriously.

The injured are: Louis Bausch, Chief of the Fire Department, collar bone broken, injured internally.

J. Orville Priest, driver, left femur fractured, injured internally, back hurt, and hand injured, slight.

Guy Watkins, fireman, left leg hurt, and hand injured, slight.

The story of the accident is that of three brave men injured in the discharge of their dangerous duty.

It is the custom at the light plant when possible, to "use the moon," that is, when the moon is shining to shut off the lights and take advantage of the moon light. The moon was bright in the early part of the night, but at a. m. the city was in total darkness.

At this time an alarm of fire sounded from box 52, corner Union and Wilson streets in West Newark. Since the chemical engine has been installed in the West End, the ladder truck is the only piece of apparatus to respond to box alarms from that part of the town. Responding to the call to duty, Chief Bausch, Fireman Watkins and Driver Priest sprang to their posts, the doors flew open, and out in the darkness the trio of brave men rushed and began their mad race to duty, and as it proved for two of them at least, nearly to their death.

Straitening out on West Main street, Priest gave his splendid team their heads, and the horses responding to the implied call of their drivers put forth their best efforts.

After crossing Sixth street, the team fairly flew westward toward the bridge, the heavy ladder truck following them almost of its own momentum down the grade. Just before entering the bridge the street turns to the left, rather sharply, and in the blind darkness the streetway could hardly be seen. Residents living along Main street heard the team coming, many jumped from bed, ran to the window and saw them dash past. Suddenly there was a deafening crash, a sound of splintering wood a grating sound as if a heavy body being dragged for a short distance, and then a moment of awful stillness, to be broken the next second by piercing cries for help from some one evidently in the direst distress. As those who heard the first cries listened more closely, they could distinguish the words, "Help, for God's sake help, our chief is under that wagon and is killed."

In a few minutes there were a number of men on the scene, including Dr. E. S. Brown, Henry Johns, Mayor Fory, E. S. Randolph, Eugene Fletcher and others. They found that the truck had struck the pavement rubbing at the end of the bridge which forced the machine out toward the center of the bridge where it struck the street car track and was overturned. Underneath the heavy truck and ladders lay Chief Lou Bausch, very white and still, bleeding and apparently dead.

Priest had been thrown violently from his seat, but he with Watkins and others immediately set to work to recover what they thought to be the dead body of Chief Bausch. Bodily the truck was lifted, and he was drawn from under where willing hands tenderly bore his unconscious form into the office of Dr. E. S. Brown, at Eighth and Main streets, close to the scene of the accident.

In the meantime a hack had been summoned and in it Priest was taken to the Central Station. He got out of the hack and resting on the shoulders of two men, hobbled into the house, where he collapsed. Chief Bausch was brought down soon afterward in McGonagle's ambulance.

When the accident happened, the off horse Allen, crashed into the side of the bridge and his right shoulder was crushed. The horse was taken to Dr. Priest's veterinary hospital on South Fifth street where he is being treated with prospects of saving his usefulness.

The ladder truck was brought back by the street sweeper team.

Prince, the other horse in the team, remained quietly standing, seeming to realize that an awful accident had happened.

A telephone message to "Central" told of the accident, and it was communicated to the engine house. The horse reel with Captain Dennis Foley and Firemen Burns and Jones, responded and rendered what aid they could at the scene of the accident.

As soon as the injured men were brought to the house, physicians were summoned and Drs. C. H. Stimson, J. W. Hornby, E. S. Brown, C. F. Legge, responded and made an examination.

The Chief was suffering intense pain at this time, and an opiate was administered hypodermically. It was found that he was bruised on the left side of the head, and was injured internally, as he was expectorating bloody mucus. His left collar bone was also broken, and he was painfully bruised. It was the internal injuries that alarmed the doctors, and the startling symptoms manifested themselves throughout the day.

At nine o'clock he was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Philip Neis, 20 South Fourth street in McGonagle's ambulance, where he was seen this morning by a reporter for the Advocate. He had passed a fairly restful night but was suffering considerable pain, and is stiff and sore all over.

It is known that a small blood vessel in the lung is ruptured, and the doctors will continue to be apprehensive until 36 hours have elapsed, that a fatal hemorrhage may set in. If none does for that length of time, they feel that all danger will be passed, as the coagulation of the blood will stop the flow, and permit the healing of the walls of the vessel.

Louis Bausch is 42 years of age and has been a member of the fire department since 1879. He has served in every capacity as pipeman, driver, engineer, captain, and for the past six years chief. In every position his signal ability has been shown, and no one could be found in Newark to say an unkind word concerning him, or one that was not in recognition of his conspicuous service. Personally as brave and courageous as it is given any man to be, he has put his high intelligence to a careful study of the question of fires and the best and quickest methods of combating their destructive activity. Through his intelligent guidance as chief, the Newark Fire Department has, on many occasions, prevented disastrous conflagrations and saved thousands of dollars worth of property. His personality, kind and genial in its nature, has made him hundreds of friends, while his brave men are devoted to him, and no grosser insult could be offered any one of them than to speak slightly or unkindly of their chief.

Mr. Bausch is also an electrical engineer of marked ability, and by many inventions along this line has brought the fire alarm system of the city to a point of almost absolute perfection. He is a widower with two children.

J. Orville Priest is about 40 years of age, and on the occasion of the accident proved himself a hero beyond any question. After the crash of the collision his first thought was not for himself, but for his chief, who was probably dead under the wreck of the truck. Although so cruelly hurt himself, and in spite of what must have been excruciating pain, he rendered assistance in lifting the apparatus off the prostrate form of Bausch, and by his well known voice, quieted the horses. When taken to the house the physicians discovered that he had suffered a fracture of the left femur, or hip bone, near the joint, and was strained through the back and kidneys in a serious way. He was taken to the home of his brother, George W. Priest, 324 North Fourth street, at 5:30 Sunday evening in McGonagle's ambulance, where he now lies racked with pain, but it is hoped not fatally injured. He is a widower with one child, a daughter about 17 years of age. About five years ago while his daughter, with her little brother, was coming from school, the boy was struck by a train at Ferry's crossing and instantly killed. It is marvelous to every one, considering the terrible injuries, how Priest did what he did, in assisting in the rescue of Bausch. He has been a member of the Central Department for about three years, and was considered a brave, capable man and a careful driver.

Watkins, the other injured man, is able to be about with the use of a cane. He was working in the place of the regular fireman, Ned Go, who has been taking a ten days' vacation. Captain Dennis Foley will act as chief during the incapacity of Chief Bausch, and Ed. Williams and Edgar Swern will act as firemen.

The hook and ladder truck has the tongue broken short off, the front axle strained but is not further indamaged. The new chemical engine, No. 2, has been put in use. This is a combination engine, hose reel and ladder truck, and answers every purpose that the two machines formerly served. The ladder truck was run to fires principally to carry the men, as it was seldom used. The machine was known to be dangerous, being top-heavy. On two previous occasions it turned over, at one time injuring Fireman Jack Woolard, and at another Chief Bausch, at the Corner of Fourth and Chestnut.

In view of these facts it is thought the machine will be abandoned, at least for the time, and a spring wagon be put in to carry the men with the chemical engine, using the Prince horse, of the ladder truck team.

Allen, the injured horse, was a favorite with the boys, who had taught him many amusing tricks, requiring the exercise of a high quality of equine intelligence.

The fire which called the department was at Stack's boarding house on Bowers street. A hole about three feet square was burned in the ceiling of one of the rooms, having caught from a gaslight.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES.

The Newark High School base ball team played the second team of Denison Saturday. The game resulted in a score of 21 to 2 in Denison's favor. The following high school boys took part in the game: Homer Jones, Edgar Sniffen, Forest Swartz, Arthur Haynes, Clyde Crilly, Walter Davis, Vern Priest, Ryan, Pine, and Miller.

The Seniors held a class meeting Monday. The meeting was called to order by President Aaron Varman; the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Mabel Phillips. It was decided that the Juniors be given two tickets to the Senior dance and reception and the Seniors given ten. The lawn fete tickets were given out.

Helen Graff presided at the piano in chapel during the past week.

Lillian Miller has returned to school after an absence due to illness.

The pupils of the tenth and twelfth grades sent a floral offering as a mark of sympathy for their classmates, Maude and Grace MacConnell, in their late bereavement, the death of their brother.

The editorial staff of the Hetuck has been photographed by Mr. G. W. Chase, and will be in the June issue of the Hetuck.

The Seniors were given a history test Friday.

The English pupils, tenth grade have finished Ivanhoe.

Cora Dair has been absent from the eleventh grade.

The following is the program for Commencement week: Sunday, June 8, baccalaureate service at St. Paul's Lutheran church, sermon by Rev. Mr. Schindler; Tuesday evening, June 10, class day program at High School Chapel; Thursday, June 13, commencement, followed by Senior reception; Friday evening, June 14, Junior dance for the Seniors.

The Seniors were given a geography test Friday.

Jerome Ferguson has resumed his studies after an absence.

Sumner Siler has withdrawn from the ninth grade.

One of the High School teachers contemplates spending the coming summer in Europe in study.

The Seniors have been taking lessons in darts, with Miss Moore as teacher. The lessons were made more enjoyable Thursday by the use of songs and music.

Maude and Grace MacConnell were absent last week on account of their brother's death.

Prof. Tait is making history a most interesting study for the Seniors. He is quite an adept in that line.

A MODERN POMPEII.

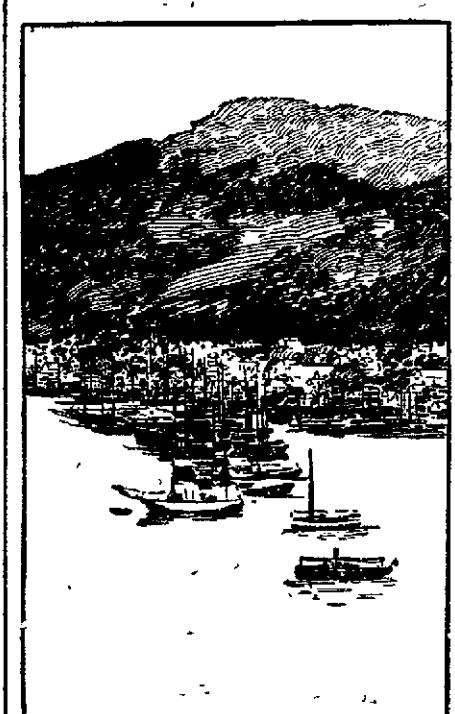

ONCE BEAUTIFUL CITY OF ST. PIERRE NOW BURIED IN LAVA.

The Eruption of Mont Pelee Prophesied Fifty Years Ago—Volcanic Formation of the Island of Martinique—Former Disasters.

[Special Correspondence.]

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, May 12.—An eruption of Mont Pelee, on the island of Martinique, was long ago predicted, but that it would inundate in a sea of burning lava the city of St. Pierre, five miles from its crater, and entail the loss of 40,000 lives was hardly conceivable.

It was prophesied as long ago as 1851, at the time of the volcanic and seismic disturbances which devastated parts of the West Indies, that there would be another eruption of Mont Pelee within half a century, and, surely enough, it has come, with more frightful results than attended the destruction of Pompeii when Mount Vesuvius belched forth its stream of molten ruin.

While the people of Martinique realized that they were dwelling above a volcanic sea and were familiar with the prophecy that there would some time come another eruption of Mont Pelee, they were inclined to minimize the danger and disregard the prophecy, believing that the volcanoes of the Antilles were nearly extinct. The most serious eruptions in the West Indies during the past century occurred in 1813, 1817, 1823, 1839 and 1851. That of Jan. 11, 1850, was most destructive. It involved in ruin a large part of the city of Fort-de-France, the capital of Martinique. That city was ravaged by fire in 1890 and nearly destroyed. And in 1891 the island was visited by a terrific tornado which devastated Fort-de-France, St. Pierre and other towns, and something like 300 lives were lost.

Near the top of Mont Pelee was a cool little lake, formed right where the eruption took place in 1851. High up there, 4,400 feet above the water, set amid luxuriant trees, with vistas of the sea and of the town below in the distance, there could be no more beautiful place. No one ever thought of fearing the volcano, which all thought to be extinct. It never smoked, and the only evidence of its activity fifty years ago was the placid little lake some sixty feet in circumference. The people crowded about it by thousands, never dreaming that there was any danger.

The island of Martinique is forty-five miles in length from north to south, from seven to sixteen miles wide, contains 380 square miles, or about 245,000 acres, of which a little less than one-third is under cultivation, an almost equal amount being forest and fallow savannah, while the remaining portion of the land on account of its mountainous character or because it is impenetrable jungle is still unbroken wilderness. The surface of the island is rugged and mountainous, the shores steep and precipitous. Enormous promontories and headlands confront the sea; lofty mountain peaks, the grandest of which is Mont Pelee, tower in the center of the island, overlooking valleys and table lands covered with dense "high woods," as the primeval forests are called. Les Pitons du Carbet, a rugged group of conical shaped mountains, leap 4,000 feet above the sea, and Mont Vancin in the southeast part stands up boldly 1,600 feet skyward.

St. Pierre, of which scarcely a vestige remains, was a city of about 30,000 people. It was picturesquely beautiful, the streets away from the business part being fringed with tropical trees and flowers. Its houses were all of cement and stone. The highest building there was just four stories. But there were many buildings of imposing architecture in the town, like the ancient old cathedral, the bizarre theater copied after the Grand Opera House in Paris, the Chamber of Commerce, a rectangular building, with galleries running round on the inside and a conical tower; the old custom house, facing the ocean; the city hall, of gray stone, and many other buildings which added to the quaint charm of the old French town.

FISH AND GAME LAW.

Advocate Below Publishes the Full Text of the Revised Act Which Will Be the Law of Ohio For the Next Two Years—Clip It Out.

The laws relating to birds, fish and game as amended by the Ohio Legislature during the session which has just closed are given below in full. During the past few days many papers have published extracts from the law and have made summaries in which were many inaccuracies. The Advocate therefore publishes the law in full as received Monday morning from the State Fish and Game Warden. It is suggested that the sheet be clipped out and preserved for future reference. Here is the law:

Section 1. That sections 6960, 6961, 6963, 6964, 6965, 6966, 6967, 6968, and 6968a, of the Revised Statutes, be amended so that they shall read as follows:

Sec. 6960. No person shall at any time catch, kill, injure, pursue, or have in his possession either dead or alive, or purchase or expose for sale, transport or ship within or without the state any dove, sparrow, nuthatch, warbler, flicker, vireo, wren, American robin, catbird, tanager, bobolink, bluejay, oriole, grosbeak or red bird, creeper, redstart, waxwing, woodpecker, hummingbird, kilder, swallow, bluebird, meadowlark, bunting, starling, redwing, purple martin, brown thrasher, American goldfinch, chickadee, ground robin, peewee or phoebe bird, chickadee, flycatcher, gnatcatcher, mousehawk, whippoorwill, snowbird, titmouse, gull, eagle, or buzzard, or any other wild bird other than a game bird. No part of the plumage, skin or body of any bird protected by this section shall be sold or had in possession for sale except as permitted in section 6960a. No person shall at any time disturb, or destroy the eggs, or nests, or young, of any of the birds named in this section. Provided that nothing in this section shall prohibit the killing of the chicken hawk, blue hawk, crow, great horned owl, or English sparrow at any time, except on the first day of the week known as Sunday, by anybody, or the destruction of their nests.

Sec. 6961. No person shall, within this state, catch, kill, injure, or pursue with such intent, any quail, or wild turkey (except between the tenth day of November and the first day of December, inclusive; or any woodcock, or squirrel, except between the first day of August and the first day of September, inclusive; or any rabbit by the aid or use of any gun, except between the tenth day of November and the first day of December, inclusive; or any rail, plover, or snipe, except between the tenth day of November and the first day of December, inclusive; and between the tenth day of March and the twentieth day of April, inclusive; or any wild duck, wild goose, wild swan, coot, or mud hen, upon the lakes, bays, and reservoirs of the state, including Lake Erie and its bays, Buckeye and Indian lakes, except between the first day of September and the fifteenth day of December, inclusive; and between the fifteenth day of March and the twentieth day of April, inclusive, upon any of the waters of the state of Ohio. No person shall at any time catch, kill, injure, or pursue, any of the birds, game or animals mentioned in this section by the aid or use of any trap, net or snare, or disturb, or destroy any of the nests, or eggs, or young thereof; nor catch, kill, injure or pursue any wild ducks, or other waterfowl named in this section by the aid or use of any gun, except a common shoulder gun, or with the aid of or from any sink boat, sneak boat, or battery; or by the aid or use of any boat whatsoever, except a common row boat propelled by oars. No person shall catch, kill, injure, or pursue, any wild ducks, or other waterfowl on Sunday or Monday of any week; nor catch, kill, injure, pursue, or shoot at, any such waterfowl before sunrise or after sunset of any day upon which it shall be lawful to kill the same. No person shall hunt, shoot, or trap, or have in his possession in the open air for such purpose any implements for hunting, shooting, or trapping on any Sunday. No person shall kill any one day more than eighteen quail, woodcock, geese, plover, or snipe; nor more than twenty-five duck; nor more than ten squirrel; nor more than six pheasant, prairie chicken, or grouse; and no person shall shoot at any quail except when they are flying. Nothing in this section shall be held to prohibit the keeping of squirrels or rabbits as pets, or prohibit the killing of squirrels or rabbits, at any time, by the owner or authorized agent only of any premises whereon they may be found injuring grain, berries, fruit, vegetables, trees or shrubbery.

Sec. 6962. No person shall catch, kill, injure, or pursue, any prairie chicken, ruffed grouse, Mongolian pheasant, English pheasant, ring-neck pheasant, or other pheasant, before the tenth day of November, 1904, or after that date, except between the tenth of November, and the first day of December, inclusive; nor at any time catch, kill, injure, or pursue any of the birds named in this section by the aid or use of any trap, net, or snare; nor at any time disturb or destroy the nests, or eggs, or young of any bird named herein.

Sec. 6964. No person shall buy, sell, expose for sale, offer for sale, or have in his possession, any of the birds, game, or animals mentioned in sections 6961 and 6963, Revised Statutes, during the time when the killing thereof is made unlawful; nor take, catch, kill, or pursue, any such birds, game, or animals for the purpose of sale with in this state; nor buy, sell, expose for sale, offer for sale, or have in possession, any such birds, game, or animals which have been killed within this state for the purpose of sale, or in any manner prohibited. No person shall receive for transportation, or shall transport, or cause to be transported, or shall have in his possession with the intent to transport, or to secure the transportation beyond the limits of this state, of any of the birds, game or animals mentioned in section 6961 and 6963, Revised Statutes, which have been killed within this state; and each bird, fowl, or animal, so killed, taken, had in possession, received for transportation, or transported, contrary to the provisions of this section, shall constitute a separate offense. The reception by any person within this state of any such birds, game, or animals, for shipment to a point within the state, shall be prima facie evidence that they were killed within this state for the purpose of conveying the same beyond its limits. But the provisions of this section shall not apply to a common carrier into whose possession any of the birds, game or animals mentioned in said sections 6960, 6961 and 6963 shall come in the regular course of their business, for transportation, while they are in transit through this state from any place without the state, where the killing of such birds, game or animals, may be lawful. * * * Provided, That nothing herein shall prohibit persons from having in possession, in enclosures, for the purpose of domestication or propagation, any of the birds or animals, mentioned in section 6961 and 6963, Revised Statutes, nor shall anything herein apply to rabbits. And nothing in this section shall prohibit any person from having in possession any ruffed grouse, or prairie chicken, between the tenth day of November and the first day of December, inclusive, of any year prior to 1904, if such birds have been killed lawfully without this state. But in case of the prosecution of any person for having in his possession any such birds prior to the year 1904, it shall be necessary for him, in order to secure an acquittal, to prove that such birds, so found in his possession, were killed lawfully without this state.

Sec. 6965. It shall be unlawful for any person not the owner to in any manner, catch, kill, injure or detain, any Antwerp or homing pigeon, commonly called "carrier" pigeon, which, at the time of its capture or detention, shall have stamped upon its wing or tail the name of its owner, or which shall have upon its leg a band bearing the name or initial of its owner, or its number, or any other mark upon it designating it as a "carrier" pigeon. It shall be unlawful for any person to catch, kill, or injure, or pursue with such intent, or to discharge any firearms at, any wild pigeon while on its nesting ground, or while at or within one-half mile of its roosting place; or to disturb in any manner any pigeon, roost or nesting place; or the eggs, or nest, or nestlings of any wild pigeon.

Sec. 6966. It shall be unlawful for any person to hunt, or trap upon the lands, ponds, lakes, or private waters of another (except waters claimed by the riparian right of ownership of adjacent lands), or to thereon shoot, shoot at, catch, kill, injure, or pursue, any bird, wild fowl, or wild animal of any kind. * * * without first obtaining the written permission from the owner, or his authorized agent. In all prosecutions under this section, the complainant shall not be required to prove a legal title to the lands or waters upon which the defendant has so unlawfully hunted or trespassed, but it shall be sufficient if he prove that he is in the lawful possession or control thereof. Whoever violates any provision of this section shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifteen dollars for a first offense, and not less than fifteen dollars nor more than fifty dollars for any subsequent offense, and in default of payment of fine and costs, shall be imprisoned as provided in section 409e, Revised Statutes.

Sec. 6967. It shall be unlawful for any person within this state to deliver or to receive for transportation, any package, box, or other receptacle containing birds, fish or game, unless the same shall be labeled on the address, inside, in plain letters, with the name and address of the owner or consignee, and with the kind or kinds of birds, fish or game, which the said package, to receive for transportation, or to falsely label the same; or to deliver, or to receive for transportation, or to transport, any birds, fish, or game, which have been killed, taken, or are had in possession, in violation of law. It shall also be unlawful for any person to refuse, upon demand, to permit any warden to inspect, or open, any package, box, or other receptacle, or any room, building, boat, or other place, in the control or possession of such person, which the said warden shall have good reason to believe to contain birds, fish or game killed, taken or had in possession, in violation of law, if upon an inspection under a search warrant issued as provided in section 409f, Revised Statutes, the same shall be found to contain, or to have contained, any birds, fish or game killed, taken, or had in possession in violation of law.

Sec. 6968. No person shall Graw, set, place, locate, or maintain, any pound-net, trammel-net, fyke-net, set-net, seine, fish-trap, or any other net or device for catching fish in any of the waters, either natural or artificial, within this state, nor catch, or kill fish with any device whatever, in any such waters, except with hook and line, with bait or lure. No person shall take or catch in any of the reservoirs of the state, or in Buckeye lake, or Indian lake, any fish with what are known as trot-lines, bob-lines, set-lines, or float-lines. No person shall in any of the waters of the state, natural or artificial (including Buckeye lake, Indian lake, Grand or Lorain reservoirs), take or catch in any manner any sunfish, known as the blue gill and common sunfish or black bass between May first and June first, inclusive. No person shall in any of the waters of the state (including Buckeye and Indian lake, Grand or Lorain reservoirs), while such waters are frozen over, covered with or partly covered with ice, catch any fish, in any manner, through any hole cut in the ice, or through any fissure, crack, or break therein. No person shall buy, sell, offer or expose for sale, or have in his possession for the purpose of sale, any black bass that has been caught in any of the rivers, creeks, or reservoirs, of the state, or in Buckeye lake or Indian lake; nor buy, sell, offer for sale, or have in his possession, any fish caught in any such waters out of season or in a manner prohibited; nor catch, take, or have in possession, any black bass less than nine inches in length (measurements to be made from end of nose to end of tail). No person shall catch, or kill any fish by the use of dynamite, or any other explosive material, or by the aid of any poisonous drug, bait, or food. No person shall catch, kill, offer for sale, sell, buy, or have in his possession, any brook trout, speckled trout, Von Behr or Brown trout, land-locked salmon, or California salmon, except between the fifteenth day of March and the fifteenth day of September, inclusive. No person shall catch, or pursue, any turtle by the aid or use of any seine, or net, except a single seine, or net, the meshes of which are not less than five inches by five inches in dimensions. Provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent the taking of minnows for bait with a minnow seine not exceeding six feet in length; nor prevent the commissioners of fish and game, or their authorized officers or agents, from taking fish at any time or place, or in any manner, for the purpose of stocking ponds, lakes, or rivers, or for the maintenance or propagation of fish hatcheries, or for the extermination of carp in any waters; nor shall anything herein prevent the taking of fish in any manner in the ponds or lagoons formed by the receding waters of running streams when such ponds or lagoons no longer have any connection with the channels of such streams. And nothing in this section shall apply to Lake Erie, or to any of the estuaries * * * or bays thereof, or shall apply to private artificial fish ponds or privately owned lakes. Whoever violates any provision of this section, or any provision of sections 6960, 6960a, 6961, 6962, 6964, 6965, 6967, or 6967a, of the Revised Statutes, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution and in default of payment of fine and costs shall be imprisoned as provided in section 409e Revised Statutes.

Sec. 6968. Whoever shall trespass upon the lands, or rights in lands, located within this state, belonging to any person, and lying in or bordering upon any natural or artificial pond or brook less than ten miles in length, into which have been introduced brook trout, speckled trout, brown trout, land-locked salmon, California salmon, or any other fish, by the means known as artificial propagation, or by actual importation, from other waters, for the purpose of fishing for, or catching, or killing fish, or shall in the waters of such pond or brook catch or kill fish; or whoever shall buy, receive, or have in his possession any fish caught contrary to the provisions of this section. * * * or whoever shall willfully place any poison or other substance injurious to the health of fish, in any pond or brook described in this section, for the purpose of capturing or harming any fish therein; or whoever shall wrongfully and willfully let the water out of any such pond or brook, with intent to take or injure any fish therein, shall, in each case, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for a first offense, and for a subsequent offense, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not less than thirty days, nor more than six months, or both. Prosecutions for a violation of any provision of this section shall be instituted only upon the complaint of the person or persons, or their agents, upon whose lands, or rights in lands, or waters, the trespass has been committed.

Sec. 2. That supplementary sections 6960b and 6967a, be enacted to read as follows:

Sec. 6960b. It shall be the duty of the state commissioner of common schools to issue annually a manual for Arbor Day exercises, as soon as possible after the governor has set apart a date for said day, as prescribed by the act of March 5, 1902, which manual, in addition to matters pertaining to forestry and the protection of birds, shall contain a copy of section 6960 of the Revised Statutes of Ohio. Said state commissioner of common schools and the commissioners of fish and game shall annually, transmit copies of said manual to the superintendents of city, village, special district and township schools and clerks of the boards of election, who shall cause the same to be distributed to the teachers of the schools under their charge. It shall be the duty of the teachers to cause to be read to the pupils of their respective schools, on the day fixed by the governor as Arbor Day, and also on such other days during the year as may be convenient and proper, said section 6960, and to urge and encourage them to aid in the protection of the song and insectivorous birds named in that section.

Sec. 6967a. On and after May 1, 1902, a person who is a non-resident of the state of Ohio, and who desires to hunt in said state, shall make application for a hunter's license to the clerk of courts of the county in which he desires to hunt; and for such license he shall pay a fee of twenty-five dollars; and in addition thereto, the clerk of courts may charge the applicant a fee of twenty-five cents. Every such license shall expire on the 15th day of December next after its issue, and shall entitle the person to whom it is issued to hunt within this state at such times, and in such manner, as may be lawful, until the expiration of his license. The forms of license here required shall be prepared by the commissioners of fish and game, and shall be in such form as they may order, which license shall be issued by the clerk of courts. The commissioners of fish and game shall furnish all licenses and other blanks required under the provisions of this section; which forms shall be approved by the attorney general of Ohio. The commissioners of fish and game may revoke the license of a non-resident upon satisfactory proof that such person has hunted in violation of law; and no license shall be granted to a person whose license has been revoked, for a period of one year thereafter. The clerk of courts shall keep a record of each license issued, in a book to be furnished him by the commissioners, and shall make a report to them on the last day of each month, in such form as they shall require, of the number of licenses issued and shall transmit, with such report, to the president of the commissioners of fish and game, the moneys received during the month for such licenses, which moneys shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of a fund, which is hereby appropriated for the use of the commissioners of fish and game, to pay the salaries and expenses of district wardens. Every such non-resident person shall, when hunting, carry with him his license, and shall, upon demand, exhibit it to any warden or police officer, and a refusal to so exhibit his license shall constitute an offense under this section. The record of licenses kept by the clerk of courts shall be open at all reasonable hours to the inspection of any person. Each day that any non-resident person shall hunt, within this state, without first having procured the license herein required, shall constitute a separate offense. The license granted hereunder shall entitle a non-resident to take with him from the state all game and birds killed by him; but of the birds so killed by him, he shall not be permitted to take from the state more than fifty of all kinds in any one week.

"I was traveling through Texas in company with an Englishman," said the colonel, "and one day at a small town we heard a tough looking fellow telling a mighty tough yarn. It was full of blood and murder, and he made it out that he had to kill two men. "Sir, I have listened to your story, and I have no hesitation whatever in denouncing you as a reprehensible prevaricator."

"The language was too high flown for the tough. He looked up, blushed around and almost blushed in embarrassment, but finally rose up and touched his hat and said:

"Why, yes, major! Being it's my time of day to lick up, I don't care if I do!"

Note on Art.

"And why," we asked the managing board of the great Paris salon, "did you not hang the painting of D'Auber, the great American artist?"

SHIRT WAIST JACKETS.

Monte Carlo Are Nobby Little Affairs—Bridal Gowns. (Special Correspondence)

New York, May 19.—The newest agony in the way of outdoor wraps is to have a short jacket looking like a blouse waist which the modiste has forgotten to sew in at the waist. The fronts hang forward and outward, sometimes in a point and sometimes in a square shape. In the illustration is one style and rather a pretty one. The back is snug, and the fronts are laid in box plaits.

I saw one yesterday made of gray homespun. The upper parts of the sleeves were tucked in narrow folds slanting out to nothing toward the bell shape. They were lined with satin of a darker shade of gray, and the jacket was also lined with the satin.

These ridiculous little affairs are called Monte Carlo jackets. The upper parts of this one were tucked, like the sleeves, half way down, and from there they stretched out loosely, so the points of the garment fairly stuck out beyond the body. The skirt was tucked down half way, and the rest fell loosely. In spite of the ugliness of the jacket the whole suit was stylish and natty.

These special jackets require folds or tucks to bring them into the proper fashion. The model in the illustration has the skirt laid in folds ornamented with several rows of stitching around the hem. The sleeves, it will be remarked, have the tops nearly plain, while the bottom is tucked into cuffs deep and wide. Across the front at the chest are frogs and loops to fasten and incidentally ornament it.

Some of the Monte Carlos are made of black taffeta and are not lined. The object of these garments seems to be to have a handy and chic little garment to slip on over a shirt waist.

The shirt waist question is quite as important as it has been, and, according to the manufacturers, there will be quite as many worn next winter as now. The only thing is that there must be no falling off in beauty or style. It keeps the designers busy to invent something new all the time, but as one designer said to be, "While you are designing one another is incubating and is ready to hatch as fast as the first is out of hand."

So we have the latest, the shield skirt front with the flaring shoulders.

THE MONTE CARLO SUIT.

Even brides wear what would pass as a shirt waist were it of anything but the thick satin now so fashionable for wedding gowns.

One bride whom I saw recently had a chine crape waist in pure white made in every respect like a mull or lawn waist bloused a little in front at the line of the draped sash of the same crape. In fact, the whole dress was of the crape. The waist opened at the left side, as do many of those when made of silk or any other handsome material. Down the left side, then, there was a jabot of lace, with tiny bits of orange branch in the folds. The sleeves were bishop, tucked close to the elbow and left to form a large puff at the elbow and then brought in to a cuff formed of still closer tucks.

The waist of another bridal gown had a back of the regulation shirt waist form and the front all in one piece draped across and up to the left shoulder, forming that really artistic but most difficult broken line effect. The folds were gathered under the little bunch of orange blossoms. By the way, this beautiful flower, so many years sacred to wedding attire, has been out of vogue for several years among those who pretend to set the fashion, but now orchids are laid aside for the sweet smelling orange blossoms. Even lilies of the valley are being ousted. It is like the fable of Aesop about the bucket that goes down and the bucket that goes up.

THE CORONATION BAG.

Latest Idea in Fashionable Wrist Bags For Women.

Among the fashionable accessories of the feminine costume which have been named in honor of the coming royal ceremonies in England is the "coronation wrist bag," which in its newest and smartest form is of walrus hand.

somewhat mounted in gilded silver, says the Philadelphia Times. The bag is somewhat narrower at the clasp than at the bottom, where it has a pointed effect. An artistic coronation bag in beige covered walrus has a clasp of gilded silver which also forms the chain and the graceful scroll ornamentation applied along the bottom of the front of the bag.

The bag closes with two acorns formed of turquoise nuts set in cups of the gilded silver. The front of the bag is arranged with a flap which opens with a turquoise cabochon button, revealing a pocket to receive the handkerchief. The lining is of moire silk, the delicate beige tint of which harmonizes with the ivory hue of the leather.

Equally artistic is a coronation bag of black walrus similarly adorned with silver edged mountings and scroll ornamentation and acorn cups holding amethyst nuts, the deep luminous purple of which is repeated in the color of the moire lining. A bag of tan walrus is still another variation of these artistically designed and created requisites of the fashionable woman's costume, and in this the nuts reposing in the gilded cups are of polished coral.

Changed the Text.
"Dr. De Witt Talmage during his visit to England in 1879," says the London Chronicle, "had been engaged to preach in a church in one of the large towns of England. On arriving at the building he found it besieged by a throng of from 15,000 to 20,000 people. Naturally, he expected the place would be crowded inside. Instead of this he was surprised to find it only moderately full."

"Why," he demanded of the pastor, "don't you let this crowd of people come in?"

"Oh," said he, "each person inside has paid 4 shillings to get in."

"Dr. Talmage had intended to preach from the text, 'Without money and without price.' He changed his subject."

The Author at Home.
"No," said the author's wife. "It's hard to understand these men of genius. There's my husband, for instance."

"Why, anything wrong with him this morning?"

"I should say so! Do you know I merely asked him to take down the stovepipe, and take up the parlor carpet, and hang the new curtains on the bay window, and stain the dining room floor, and move the piano to the east corner, and he flew into a rage and acted as if he had lost all the mind he thinks he's got."—Atlanta Constitution.

BALL GAME

AT GRANVILLE ON TUESDAY WILL BE WORTH SEEING.

W. & J. Plays Denison—Scores Made by the Big Ones—Season's Greatest—College Games.

Washington, Pa., May 19.—The Washington-Jefferson ball team left today for its last tour of the season through West Virginia and Ohio. The first game is with Scio college at Scio today. Tomorrow they play Denison at Granville; Wednesday at Gambier; Thursday at Athens; Friday and Saturday two games at Morgantown, W. Va. The team has been putting up a winning game and expects to make a killing on the trip. The players are all in good shape.

BASE BALL SCORES.
Saturday's base ball games resulted as follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.
Chicago 1, Boston 3.
Pittsburg 9, Philadelphia 3.
St. Louis 4, Brooklyn 2.
Cincinnati 6, New York 1.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.
Chicago 6, St. Louis 2.
Baltimore 7, Washington 5.
Boston 5, Philadelphia 7.
Cleveland 14, Detroit 0.

Sunday's games were as follows:
At Cincinnati— R. H. E.
Cincinnati 15 16 2
New York 1 5 2
Batteries: Ewing and Peitz; Kennedy, Evans and Bowerman.

At Chicago— R. H. E.
Chicago 3 8 8
Pittsburg 11 14 1
Batteries: Menefee and Kling; Phillips and O'Connor.

At St. Louis— R. H. E.
St. Louis 6 10 8
Brooklyn 5 7 4
Batteries: Murphy, Wicker, and Ryan; Hughes and Ahearn.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.
At Chicago— R. H. E.
Chicago 2 15 0
St. Louis 2 9 4
Batteries: Callahan and McFarland; Donahue and Snyder.

At Detroit— R. H. E.
Detroit 13 16 6
Cleveland 11 10 1
Batteries: Miller, Mullen, Siever, and McGuire; Lundholm, Joss, Stoen, and Bemis.

COLUMBUS HAS GOOD LEAD.
Columbus won Saturday's game at Milwaukee 3 to 2, and Sunday's at Minneapolis 6 to 1. Thus far the Senators have done better on the western trip than was hoped for. They now lead the American Association with a percentage of .696, a clean margin of 85 points separating them from the second club, Indianapolis. Unless they take a decided slump in their playing Grim's men will return in first place, when they will be in a position to increase their lead on the home grounds. All Newark base ball enthusiasts are "pulling" for Columbus.

THE SEASON'S GREATEST.
The game at Chicago between Comiskey's White Sox, and St. Louis, on Sunday, was the greatest played so far this season. For seventeen innings Callahan for Chicago, and Donahue for St. Louis struggled for supremacy, but the score ended a tie at 2 to 2.

2. Numerous opportunities were presented for either side to win with a single hit, but the pitchers were too effective.

Stops and catches that enthused the 15,000 spectators followed rapidly one after another. Davis hurled himself upon his chest, cut off a stinging hit and caught a runner at second, throwing the ball while still on his knees. Jones ran in from deep center, dived for a ball, which he barely picked from the ground; Green picked one off the right field fence; Burkett ran almost out of earshot and pulled down flies, while Wallace, Padden, McCormick, Anderson, Isbell and Daly all figured in startling plays.

Donahue had perhaps a shade the best in the pitching, but was handicapped by errors behind him. Callahan did some remarkable stick work, getting five hits out of eight times at the bat. The game will be played off later.

CINCINNATI BRACES UP.
The Reds have braced up and the last two games played by them have been excellent exhibitions of base ball. New York in the two games, scored only two runs. In Saturday's game "Big Bill" Phillips clearly outpitched the great Matthewson and on Sunday "Long Bob" Ewing, held the Giants to five bingles. Cincinnati and Brooklyn are now tied for sixth place.

A GREAT GAME TOMORROW.

A great game is anticipated for tomorrow afternoon on the athletic park of Denison University, Granville. When the teams of Washington-Jefferson, of Washington, Pa., and Denison will cross bats. The Washington-Jefferson team is an unusually strong one, and as Denison is proving to be strictly in it this season, the lovers of the game are looking forward to some fine playing. Undoubtedly there will be a large attendance from this city. The Pennsylvania boys beat Homestead last week, and are playing great ball.

COLLEGE GAMES

Many surprises were sprung Saturday in the various college games cast and west. The results follow: Harvard beat Pennsylvania 8 to 5, Princeton beat Georgetown 13 to 5, Illinois beat Chicago 15 to 1, Cornell beat Michigan 10 to 9, Yale beat Orange A. C. in 13 innings 4 to 3, West Virginia beat DePaul 17 to 2, Ohio Wesleyan 6, Denison 5.

WEST INDIAN CARIBS.

Description of a Race Wiped Out in St. Vincent.

NOTED FOR PECULIAR SPEECH.

Both an Ancient and Natural Language Used as Well as a Bazaar Speech—Women Spoke Differently From the Men—Their Customs and Superstitions.

In a book called "The Storied West Indies," written by Frederick A. Ober and published by D. Appleton & Co., there appears descriptions of the Caribs, the last survivors of which race in St. Vincent Island have been wiped out of existence by the recent volcanic eruptions.

"In the last decade of the fifteenth century," says the author, "the area occupied or controlled by the Caribs in the West Indies extended, roughly speaking, from 10 degrees to 20 degrees north latitude, or from Trinidad to Hispaniola. Their original home was probably in the northern part of South America, from the Amazon to Venezuela, Caribs being still found in a state of savagery in the Guianas. The Spaniards have left but scant material for an estimate of these people, but preferably from a quaint book called the "History of the Caribby Islands," published in England more than 200 years ago, we may learn much of their appearance.

"The English author says: 'They go about stark naked—all alike, men, women and children. Though the Christians have conversed very much among them, yet have all their persuasions been to no purpose. * * * Of the thunder, which they call God's voice, they are very much afraid, and they are prone to leave their houses after the death of an inmate. As to division of labor, the men make the hats, procure fish and game, and some also labor in the fields. The women attend to the domestic duties, paint their husbands with "roucou," spin yarn and weave hammocks.'

"This author mentions a peculiar fact which I also noted when I was living with the descendants of the Caribs, and that is the Caribs have an ancient and natural language, such as is peculiar to them, and also a bastard speech, with foreign words, chiefly Spanish, intermixed. Among themselves they always use the natural, but in conversing with Christians the corrupt speech. The women also have a different speech from the men."

In a chapter on Barbados, Tobago and Trinidad Mr. Ober says: "On the windward side of St. Vincent reside the last remnants of the black Caribs, who a hundred years ago gave battle stoutly to the British invaders of their tropical domain. They differ from the only other family of Caribs (in Dominica) in being very dark of hue, and this is explained by the wrecking of a slave ship here in the latter part of the seventeenth century, the survivors of the disaster having intermarried with the native Indians. In the year 1785, after committing great cruelties, the black Caribs were subdued, the major portion of them expatriated to the coast of Honduras and their chief, Black Bull, gibbeted alive in chains, suffering terrible torments for a week before he died."

EGGS OF THE SILKWORM.

Department of Agriculture Preparing For Extensive Tests.

The division of entomology of the department of agriculture will make extensive researches this summer in the realm of silk culture and for this purpose has lately imported a large number of silkworm eggs from the great silk producing districts of southern France, says the Washington Post. These eggs are of the size of ordinary bird shot and of a pale olive green color.

They reach the office of the division in little gauze bags and are immediately placed in a warm sunlit place, protected from the cold, where in the course of a week or so they hatch. Congress will shortly appropriate $10,000 for the investigation and promotion of silk culture in the south, and Dr. Howard will leave in a few days for France and Italy to purchase a large number of eggs for distribution among farmers throughout the south.

The Pingpong Ankle.

And now the pingpong ankle. Is scaring faddists gay Who gather round the table And there pingpong away 'Tis latest of the ailments That fads have brought about, And those who've been against it Say it's as bad as gout

We've had the golfing shoulder, We've had the biking back, We've had the tennis elbow And other ills that rack But worse than all the others That fads have brought about Is this queer ankle trouble Connected with pingpong.

It twists the nerves and muscles Concealed in players' shoes And spoils the curves of beauty In feet set of pins. It swells the nearest ankles That e'er made owner vain, And when they're thus encased It loads them up with pain.

Among the English Faddists.

This ailment first appeared, And soon a lot of players Were by it badly queered. 'Twas hoped that Yankee ankles Would not be thus made lame, But on this side the trouble Is spreading with the game.

Now, if our fair pingpongers Must thus be afflicted, There's one sure plan of action On which we'll all agree. We want neat Yankee ankles, Of that there's no doubt, And if their curves are threatened We'll just cut pingpong off. —Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

HOW AH GRIM MADE A TWO BAGGER

Copyright, 1900, by Caroline Wetherell

When Ah Grim, the baby giant, burnt his hand, he cried so hard that his tears produced a river that ran through a neighbor's yard, and to save the nearby houses "Papa" Jack made haste to call, "Cry no more, my tootsie wootsie; you shall have a bat and ball." When the ball at last was ready to be batted, bounced and thrown, it was larger than a pumpkin and as hard as any stone.

It was made of solid rubber, wound with miles of worsted yarn, and the bat was quite a wonder; it was taller than the barn. When Ah Grim, the baby giant, gave the ball a playful knock. Bang! it went against two houses with an awful, awful shock. And the houses fell to pieces, folks around in terror fled. And without a bite of supper poor Ah Grim was sent to bed.

Fined For Bad Grammar.

A New Orleans school has adopted a very unique way of correcting the bad English used in the schools. There is placed in the center of the schoolroom a little iron bank. For every three errors in speech the one guilty of them must put a cent in the bank. A large record book is kept on the desk near the bank, and every time a mistake is made the exact phrase used, the time of the mishap and the name of the offender are placed on a line in the book, something like the following:

I seen him. Julia —, 10 23 a. m., Jan. 17.

She done it. Hazel —, 1:31 p. m., Dec. 20.

I haven't saw her. Mabel —, 8:45 a. m., Feb. 2.

This puts the pupils on record and has proved to be a very effective plan. Some of the pupils put in a nickel at a time so that they will have fifteen errors to their credit. They feel safer if they are on the good side of the bank. Strange to say, nobody complains or contests the right to fine. The money collected goes toward the purchase of books or for some other general benefit.

About Cats.

Cats make the most careful toilet of any animals, excepting some of the opossums. Lions and tigers wash themselves like the cat, wetting the dark, India rubberlike ball of the fore foot and the inner toe and passing to the face and behind the ears, and the rough tongue combs the rest of the body.

MYSTERY OF FATE

Seems To Have Pursued Not Only the Dininger Family But a Strange Fatality Has Overshadowed Family of Mr. Dininger's Widow.

The funeral of the late Joseph Dininger took place from the late home on Arlington avenue, Saturday afternoon, Rev. L. S. Boyce officiating. The unexplainable mystery of fate seems to have not only pursued the Dininger family, as was brought to the Advocate's readers' attention, but a strange fatality seems to have overshadowed the family of Dininger's widow, who was Miss Florence Durant, a niece of the late Mrs. A. B. Clark, and a cousin of Mrs. William Graves.

The family of three sisters, Grace, Jennie and Florence, each married railroad men and in each case the husband met with a fatal accident. Several other members of the Durant family were also afflicted, by fatal accidents.

Mrs. Dininger's uncle, named Durent, was found dead in a field with a shot gun near him, his head having been literally blown from his body. He had gone out early in the morning to shoot some farm pest that had been decimating the chicken flocks, and did not return for breakfast. It was never known whether he committed suicide or met with an accident.

Another uncle of the family was burned to death in a hotel fire.

SECTION MAN

STRUCK BY TRAIN AND BADLY INJURED.

Victim of the Accident Monday Morning is Frank Kinney Who Lives on German Street.

Frank Kinney, a section boss on this division of the Pan Handle railway, was seriously injured Monday morning by being struck by Pan Handle second section of No. 10 due here from the west at 10:05 o'clock. Kinney had crossed the tracks to where a gang of telegraph linemen was at work for the purpose of getting a tape line that John Fallon, one of the telegraph linemen, had borrowed. After getting the tape line he stepped back on the track directly in front of the approaching train and was struck with considerable force by the engine, and was thrown to one side of the track. The linemen who were working close by, noticed the accident and hurried to the assistance of the injured man. Conductor Senft, who was in charge of the train, stopped the train and also went back to where the injured man lay. The unconscious form of Mr. Kinney was picked up and carried into the yard of Mrs. B. Maurath, and placed on the grass, and Dr. Knauss was summoned. It was found, on examination that he had been badly injured about the side, back, shoulder and head, but it is not thought that his injuries will prove fatal.

McGonagle's ambulance was called, and the injured man was taken to his home on German street, where his family, consisting of his wife and several children reside. Mr. Kinney is past sixty years old, and has always been considered one of the most careful and efficient section men in the employ of the Pan Handle railway.

SPAIN'S YOUNG KING.

Interesting Anecdote Related of Don Alfonso XIII.

Great interest is at present being concentrated on the young King Alfonso of Spain, says the Madrid correspondent of the New York Herald. He was born under exceptional circumstances, and his father, Alfonso XII, was very delicate, but with the strict regimen that Don Alfonso has been obliged to observe he has grown well, is tall and has a very good figure.

Don Alfonso inherits all the vivacity of spirit and repartee for which his father was famous. The boy mottos of the young king denote a very keen sense of humor. The professor of history, Senor Brieva Salvatierra, was once calling Don Alfonso's attention to the titles that former kings of Spain who bore the same name had been awarded by history. He cited that one Alfonso was called "The Wise," another "The Warlike," and so on, when suddenly the young king interrupted his professor, saying, "Well, I think they will nickname me 'Alfonso the Rabbit.'" This is because Don Alfonso went nearly every day to the Casa del Campo (country house), which he cordially detests and which is full of these animals.

It can scarcely be said of people who wear squeaky shoes that they have music in their soles.

MRS. AMOS SHAW

Died Sunday Evening at Her Late Home on East Main Street—The Funeral Tuesday.

Mrs. Grace A. Shaw, a well known and highly esteemed woman of this city, wife of Councilman Amos Shaw, died at her home near 161 East Main, on Sunday evening at 8:10 o'clock. The deceased had been a sufferer from cancer for some time past, and in February last underwent an operation, since which time she has gradually failed, and for the past several weeks has been confined to her bed. The deceased, who was aged about 56 years, was the daughter of the late Henry Proctor, a former well known farmer residing in the northeastern part of the county. She had resided with her husband in this city for a number of years, and had made many friends who will greatly regret to learn of her demise. The bereaved husband has the sympathy of all his friends in his affliction. The funeral will take place from the house Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by the Rev. J. C. Schindel, and the remains will be interred in Cedar Hill cemetery.

Harding Davis' Rival.

David Graham Phillips, author of "Her Serene Highness," is the most dangerous rival Richard Harding Davis has ever had in the esteem of the delightful kind of young girl known as the matinee type, says Harper's Literary Gossip. Mr. Phillips is young and good looking, and his novels have that combination of vim and romance which promptly captures the fancy of young women. Mr. Phillips' friends say that he looks like a college athlete, but that he preserves his perfect health—and his other perfections—by never taking any exercise. He is a bachelor and lives in New York.
